INCA, a software tool for metabolic analysis developed by a Vanderbilt chemical engineer recently passed 1,000 total academic licenses and is the most licensed software on the university's online licensing and e-commerce platform.

More details found: https://engineering.vanderbilt.edu/news/2021/widely-used-software-developed-by-young-lab-tops-1000-academic-licenses/